Visitors to Salon Art + Design at the Park Avenue Armory in New York later this month will be seeing ever more contemporary decor, furniture, and fine art amid the vintage lamps and furniture.

The size of the fair, in its 11th year, is slightly smaller than usual, yet up from 47 exhibitors in 2021 as confusion around pandemic travel restrictions kept some galleries away. The full slate this year includes several installations by single artists or design teams on the main floor of the fair in addition to exhibits that will greet visitors in the historic rooms off the Armory's entrance hall.

Last year, the fair featured Studio Greytak of Montana, which incorporates stones and minerals in contemporary furniture.
